Taken from the ANNUAL REGISTER for the Year 1766.

EUROPE, ſtill ſore with the wounds it received in the laſt war, ſeems as yet deſirous of reſt and peace. There have been, in different periods of hiſtory, and different parts of the world, ſome very poor, and very military nations, who had no other road to riches, or conſideration, but war. No experience of the miſchiefs attending it, can affect people of that character; it would be ridiculous to caution a man againſt danger, wounds, or even death, who had no poſſible manner of living, but by encountering them. To the happineſs of mankind, providence has now circumſcribed theſe hungry nations within very narrow bounds; like the birds and beaſts of prey, their numbers are far from being conſiderable, and Europe at preſent is infeſted with but few of them. On a review of the wars of this century in Europe, and their conſequences, it would be difficult to prove any nation at all a gainer by them. Ambition, indeed, is not very attentive to calculations. It is however to be hoped, that the total want of any brilliant acquiſition, may, for a while at leaſt, check that luſt of dominion, which has been for now, almoſt an age, ſo very unfruitful. There is but one Prince now living on the Continent of Europe, who has been even apparently a gainer by conqueſt; and it ſtill remains a doubt, whether, in three ſucceſſive wars, he has not paid more for his purchaſe, than it is worth, excluſive of the riſks he has himſelf run, and which his ſucceſſors will probably be liable to, in conſequence of his victories.

In this ſituation of affairs, exhauſted as moſt of the principal powers in Europe are of men and money, and involved deeply in debt, it is poſſible that they may ſuffer mankind to indulge for ſome years longer in the bleſſings of peace. Our next neighbour and old rival, France, ſeems in theſe circumſtances, vaſt as her natural reſources are. The conſequences of a ruinous war having reduced her very nearly to a ſtate of general bankruptcy, nothing but time, together with the ſtricteſt œconomy, attention, and induſtry, can reſtore to their former ſtate, her manufactures, commerce, marine, and finances. To all theſe points, however, ſhe has with equal aſſiduity and ſucceſs been very attentive ſince the peace; in which time ſhe has recovered her trade, in many parts of the world, to a ſurprizing degree. It is true, her attempts to retrieve her commerce, have met with diſcouragements, and the dreadful hurricanes in the Weſt-Indies, and ſome other misfortunes, have put them back conſiderably, in ſome articles of it; but, on the whole, the natural advantages of that country, in the hands of an enterpriſing and induſtrious people, have had a conſtant operation in their favour, and they recover apace.

The court of France ſeems at preſent to lay itſelf out with the greateſt care, to cement and cultivate the ſtrict alliance and family union with the other branches in the houſe of Bourbon, in Spain and Naples. The preſent King of Spain, however diſagreeable it may be to the Spaniards in general, gives entirely into French meaſures, and makes a common intereſt of the affairs of both nations. Mutual ceſſions of lands, it is ſaid, have been made in America and the Weſt-Indies; the French having given up to the Spaniards, what they had poſſeſſed on the Miſſiſippi; and the Spaniards, as it is univerſally reported and believed, have relinquiſhed to them the part that ſtill remained in their hands, of the great and valuable iſland of Hiſpaniola. Many have been ſurprized, that this exchange of territory was not by ſome means attempted to be fruſtrated by Great-Britain; conſidering how much it muſt affect our poſſeſſions in the Weſt-Indies, and ſo great and valuable a branch of our commerce, as the ſugar trade.

France ſeems, as well as England, to have entirely dropped her ſubſidiary connections in Germany. With her new ally, the houſe of Auſtria, ſhe however keeps upon the moſt friendly terms, and there ſeems to be a cordial harmony between them. In the North, her intereſt ſeems to have declined greatly; though, it is ſaid, notwithſtanding theſe appearances, that her ambaſſador at the Court of Peterſburgh has lately got leave to eſtabliſh a factory at Archangel, on the White Sea. It is alſo believed, that ſhe has attempted to negotiate a treaty of more conſequence with Sweden; whereby ſhe has offered to pay the ſubſidy arrears due to that Court, upon condition that the Swedes ſhould build her a certain number of men of war at a ſtated price, and ſupply her for the future, in caſe of war, with a fixed number of ſhips and ſailors, in lieu of the old ſtipulation of land forces.

This ſeems an improvement of her plan of Northern politics. Indeed both France and Spain, ſenſible of their paſt errors, and of the great importance of their object, are increaſing their marine, with the moſt unwearied aſſiduity; in which the former has been greatly aſſiſted, as well by the Genoeſe, as by the great quantity of ſhip-timber, with which they have ſupplied their arſenals at Toulon, from Corſica, ſince their troops took poſſeſſion of the Genoeſe part of that iſland.

The affair of the Canada bills, which was the only cauſe of altercation, that remained between the courts of Great-Britain and France, has been amicably ſettled, to the ſatisfaction of both. Though the court of Spain has not yet thought proper to manifeſt that regard to juſtice and honour, with reſpect to the Manilla ranſom, which might have been wiſhed and expected, yet it is not probable that it will ſo ſuddenly venture to involve itſelf in a ſecond rupture with Great-Britain. Spain has already ſuffered by her obſtinacy in that affair, if it be true, as is generally believed, that it was in conſequence of her fears for the vengeance that might have been taken upon that account, that the flota which had already ſailed for Europe, was ſtopt in its voyage, and remanded back again to its port. The detention of their Weſt India treaſure is always attended with ill conſequence in that country; nor are theſe confined to the commercial part of the nation, the people in general ſenſibly feel them. The miſchief however did not ſtop there; the fleet having afterwards received orders to ſail for Europe, met with a violent ſtorm, by which ſome of the ſhips were drove aſhore, and the reſt obliged to put back in a ſhattered condition to the Havanna.

The alliance by marriage between Great-Britain and Denmark, as well as that which took place about the ſame time between a ſiſter of the preſent King of Denmark and the Prince Royal of Sweden, by cementing anew, and drawing cloſer together the Proteſtant Intereſt, ſeems in a great meaſure to counterpoiſe the cloſe union of the houſe of Bourbon.

Though the death of the late King of Denmark has hitherto made no viſible alteration in the ſyſtem of the North, yet it may not be vain to expect, that a total change will take place in the conduct of that court. Influenced entirely, as it has been for ſome years paſt, by French councils, we may now hope to ſee an Anglo-Pruſſian ſyſtem take place in their ſtead. It is not to be doubted, but the amiable Princeſs whom his Daniſh Majeſty has eſpouſed, will contribute greatly to increaſe theſe good diſpoſitions, as well as the harmony and friendſhip which ſubſiſts between our court and nation, and thoſe of Denmark.

The Prince of Orange, perpetual Stadholder of the United Provinces, being alſo happily arrived of age (8th March 1766) to take the adminiſtration upon him, may be looked upon as a great addition and ſtrength to the Proteſtant ſyſtem. The great and voluntary rejoicings, which were ſo univerſally made upon that occaſion throughout the whole United Provinces, and which exceeded, even as to outward appearance, thoſe that are the offspring of fear or neceſſity, in deſpotic governments, ſufficiently teſtify the great weight which the Princes of that illuſtrious houſe will ever bear in the Republic.

The Empreſs of Ruſſia (excepting the part ſhe has taken in the affairs of Poland) ſtill preſerves a pacifick aſpect towards the reſt of Europe, and an attention to the intereſt and improvement of her ſubjects. Her court is become the aſylum of the ſciences, to which ſhe invites learned men from every part of Europe.

Germany, as well as Italy, afford at preſent but little room for political obſervation.——The two great rival powers in the former, at the ſame time they take the greateſt care to complete their armies, and remount their cavalry, ſeem for the preſent to have no particular intention to give umbrage one to the other. The part which the King of Pruſſia has taken, in concert with Ruſſia, Denmark and England, in the affairs of Poland, does not appear (partly through the inability of the Poles to contend with the great powers in queſtion) likely to be attended with any extraordinary conſequences, unleſs the Empreſs-Queen, ſtimulated by her hatred to the King of Pruſſia, ſhould make the Catholic cauſe, a pretext for interfering in favour of Poland; in which caſe there can be no poſſibility of foreſeeing how far the conſequences may extend.

The moſt remarkable incident which this year produced in Italy, was the Pope's abſolute refuſal to acknowledge, by any of thoſe vain titles, which he pretended to claim in right of his father, the eldeſt ſon of the unhappy family of Stuart. This example has been followed, even by thoſe Roman Catholic Princes who had formerly given the greateſt protection to that family, ſo that as the father had lived long enough to ſee every hope of ſucceſs to his claims to theſe kingdoms extinct and dead, the ſon has already found his very pretenſions diſavowed by every power in Europe. The ſuperiors of the Engliſh, Scots, and Iriſh colleges in Rome, having thought proper to pay thoſe honours which the Pope had himſelf refuſed and forbidden, were upon that account, ſent into exile; while the unfortunate adventurer retired into the country, to avoid the mortifications which he muſt have hourly experienced in that capital. On a ſurvey of affairs in all parts of Europe, on the whole, appearances are pacific.

SAVANNAH, (in Georgia) NOVEMBER 4.

A MESSAGE from his Excellency the Governor to the Upper Houſe of Aſſembly.

Honourable Gentlemen,

THE Earl of Shelburne, his Majeſty's principal Secretary of State for the ſouthern department, having notified to me, that his Majeſty expects and requires that the Commons Houſe of Aſſembly of this Province will render an exact and compleat obedience in all reſpects whatever to the terms of the Mutiny Act, and being commanded, without delay, in his Majeſty's name, to require, that they will make thoſe proviſions for the ſupply of the King's troops which by that act they are directed to do.

I have this day laid his Majeſty's commands before them, of which I think it neceſſary to inform you, and have not the leaſt doubt but that, as far as lies with you, you will cheerfully concur in rendering obedience to his Majeſty's commands, and the authority of the Britiſh Legiſlature.

Savannah in Georgia, Council-Chamber, the 27th of October, 1767. JA. WRIGHT.

To his Excellency JAMES WRIGHT, Eſquire, Captain-General, and Governor in Chief, of his Majeſty's Province of Georgia, Chancellor and Vice-Admiral of the ſame.

The humble ADDRESS of the Upper Houſe of Aſſembly.

May it pleaſe your Excellency,

THIS Houſe having taken into conſideration your Excellency's meſſage of this day to them, informing them, that you had received a notification from the Earl of Shelburne, his Majeſty's principal Secretary of State for the ſouthern department, that his Majeſty expected and required, that the Commons Houſe of Aſſembly of this province, will render an exact and compleat obedience in all reſpects whatever to the terms of the Mutiny Act.

This Houſe doth aſſure your Excellency, that they will at all times pay a due regard to his Majeſty's commands, and render an exact and complete obedience in all reſpects whatever to the authority of the Britiſh Legiſlature, as they are convinced it is their indiſpenſable duty ſo to do, and that they will moſt cheerfully concur with the Commons Houſe of Aſſembly in making thoſe proviſions for his Majeſty's troops which are required by the ſaid act.

By order of the Upper Houſe,
JAMES HABERSHAM, Preſident.

Upper Houſe of Aſſembly,
October 27th, 1767.

His Excellency's ANSWER.

Honourable Gentlemen,

I AM extremely obliged to you for this addreſs; the dutiful regard you ſo warmly expreſs for his Majeſty, and the authority of the Britiſh Legiſlature, gives me great ſatisfaction, and I think muſt do you honour.

JA. WRIGHT.

His Excellency's MESSAGE to the Commons Houſe of Aſſembly.

Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the Aſſembly,

HAVING lately received letters from the Earl of Shelburne, his Majeſty's principal Secretary of State for the ſouthern department, has obliged me to call you together a little earlier than I ſhould otherwiſe have done: But, Gentlemen, I am to acquaint you, that his Majeſty expects and requires that you will render an exact and compleat obedience in all reſpects whatever to the terms of the Mutiny Act; and I am commanded, without delay, in his Majeſty's name, to require, that you will make thoſe proviſions for the ſupply of the King's troops which by that act you are directed to do.

Give me leave, Gentlemen, (not merely as Governor, but from a ſincere and zealous wiſh for the happineſs and proſperity of the people and province) to exhort you in the warmeſt and ſtrongeſt manner to a cheerful and ſpeedy compliance with this requiſition; let me intreat you coolly and ſeriouſly to conſider the duty we owe to the beſt of Kings, the gratitude due to the Britiſh Legiſlature for the peculiar favours and benefits beſtowed on us, and the protection we receive from the mother country, and which alone it is that muſt or can preſerve and ſecure to us our true liberty, our property, and every thing that is or ought to be dear and valuable to us. Theſe and other conſiderations that muſt occur, I hope will prove powerful incentives, and that the prudent conduct of this ſeſſion will ſet us in that light with our moſt gracious Sovereign which I am perſuaded you as well as myſelf wiſh to appear in.

JA. WRIGHT.

Council Chamber, Savannah in Georgia, the 27th of October, 1767.
